

School and returned to his hometown of Utica to practice law. He was a partner in Capecelatro, Del Buono and Compson and was a member of the America, N.Y. State, and Trial Lawyers Associations. He was also president of the Dartmouth Club of Utica.

Cap is survived by his wife, Mary, five daughters, three sons, and eleven grandchildren.

Frederick Roderick Columbia Jr.

died March 11 at Waupun Memorial Hospital in Waupun, Wisc. Fred served in the Naval Research Officers' Training Corps in WW II and became a claims adjuster upon discharge. He later became a new car franchise dealer and secretary-treasurer of Waupun Auto Sales.

He leaves his wife, Yvonne, and two sons.

James Joseph Feeney

died February 19 in Massachusetts of an unknown cause. Jim entered Dartmouth after service in the army during which he received a battlefield commission to 1st lieutenant in the Medical Corps. After graduation from Dartmouth Medical School he finished his schooling at Harvard Medical School in 1952.

He enjoyed a career of teaching medicine at Harvard and various positions in practice at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston.

Jim is survived by his wife, Leonara, and two sons.

William Thomas Griffiths

died April 30 in Hanover, N.H., of pneumonia and complications of diabetes, from which he had suffered since childhood. Bill grew up in Cleveland. At Dartmouth he majored in economics, was a member of Phi Delt and the Glee Club, and he directed the inter-fraternity "Hums" his senior year. He went on to Case-Western Reserve Law School, and was admitted to the Ohio Bar.

For the past five years he has been co-owner of the Quechee Gin Mill Restaurant in Quechee, Vt. Previously he was a certified shopping center manager for companies in Cleveland, Long Island, Daytona Beach, and New York.

Bill continued his singing through the years. He was an original member of the Cleveland-based singing group the Sleepless Knights. Upon moving to New York in 1968 he joined the University Glee Club and also sang first tenor for a male singing group, the Off-Sounders, in Riverside. In Hanover, he and his wife were "character members" of a new choir for the UUCUV, formed in 1989.

He is survived by his wife, Beth, four daughters, his father, a sister, and five grandchildren.

1950

Robert Holden Smith

died September 30, 1990, of a heart attack while sailing near his home in Annapolis, Md. Bob grew up in Short Hills, N.J., and attended Holderness School. At Dartmouth he majored in English and was a member of Delta Tau Delta.

Bob spent his career in sales and marketing management with IBM, Satellite Business Systems, and MCI Communications.

He came from an extensive Dartmouth heritage. Bob's great grandfather, Asa Dodge Smith, was president of the Co. His grandfather and father were four brothers, a son, and a

Bob is survived by his wife, three sons, a daughter, a grandson, and eight brothers and sisters.

—Cotten Smith '78

1951

Alfonso Estrada Jr.

died on March 3 in a car accident near his home in Torreon, Coah, Mexico. Al majored in business administration and received his M.C.S. from Tuck in 1952. He was a member of the D.O.C., the French Club, the Foreign Students' Club, and won his varsity letter in soccer.

In Mexico Al was very active in business and real estate ventures. He participated in many religious, educational, and sports activities in Torreon, as well as on a national level.

He is survived by his wife, Maria, their four children, and his brother and Dartmouth classmate Cesar.

Richard Earl Lyons

died March 12 while playing racketball at the gymnasium of DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind.

Dick entered Dartmouth from Fowlerville, Mich., majored in sociology and was a member of Theta Delta Chi. He served in several posts in the Admissions Office at DePauw, and was Admissions Liaison for the Athletic Director at the time of his death.

He is survived by his wife, Alberta.

William David Renner

died at home in Portsmouth, N.H., on May 27 after a brief illness. Bill had spent thirty years in the Air Force, retiring as a full colonel in 1983. He was highly decorated for service as a pilot in the Strategic Air Command. He flew combat missions in Korea and Vietnam and also served in the U.S., U.K., and Germany. Bill's ashes were interred, with honors, at Arlington National Cemetery.

Bill came to Dartmouth from Great Neck, N.Y., and studied geology. He was a Chi Phi. After graduation, he went with the exploration department of Sinclair Oil and Gas in Oklahoma before enlisting in 1953.

Upon retirement, he and his wife Barbara purchased an historic home in Portsmouth. While working on the restoration, Bill also attended The University of New Hampshire, winning his master's degree in colonial American history, which he planned to teach. He was also an avid golfer.

In addition to his wife, Barbara, Bill is survived by a brother and a sister.

1953

Gilbert Turner Austin

died of kidney cancer on August 4, 1990, after a relatively short illness. Turner, who grew up and attended schools in Manhasset, Long Island, had a life-long interest in sports. While a history major and member of Sigma Nu, he earned his "D" in baseball. Most of his career was spent in life insurance, of which he became a general agent. About five years ago he Turner had a passion for golf, and he and Joyce were enchanted with island travel—especially Hawaii, Bermuda, Trinidad and Tobago. He is survived by Joyce, their two children, and two grandchildren.

Herbert R. Hartley

died on January 10, 1990, from bronchial pneumonia which was complicated by arteriosclerosis. At the time of death he was living in Forest Hills, Long Island, N.Y.

After leaving Dartmouth Herb joined Kidder, Peabody & Co. in New York City. He enjoyed a long career as a stock broker working primarily with individual clients.

Herb was married for twelve years, but had no children; his non-vocational interests were golf and tennis. He is survived by a sister.

John Michael Kingsland

died in Boston after a massive heart attack on May 28, 1990. John had moved from New York after retiring as a utilities corporate finance specialist, vice president at Kidder, Peabody & Co. John entered Dartmouth with several of his Ridgewood (N.J.) H.S. classmates; he majored in English, plied his humorous nature on the Jack-O-Lantern staff, and was a member of Alpha Theta and N.R.O.T.C.

After his Naval tour John completed his M.B.A. requirements at Tuck School in 1958 and then joined White, Weld & Co., a N.Y. investment firm, where he stayed 20 years. John was a director of the Sealed Air Corporation and Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation. After retiring, he turned his energies towards his consuming interest in archeology, developed over many years of travel to numerous Mediterranean sites of antiquity. In addition, he enrolled at Harvard to study linguistics first in English and then in other foreign languages.

John left two children, Susan and Samuel, both Dartmouth graduates.

1959

Scott C. Booma

died February 7 in the Shaughnessey Rehabilitation Hospital in Salem, Mass., after a lengthy illness.

Born in Salem, he was a life-long resident of Marblehead and a graduate of Hebron Academy.

At Dartmouth, Scott was a member of Phi Delta Theta and Dragon Honor Society. After graduation he joined the Marine Corps and served seven years, obtaining the rank of first lieutenant.

He worked for the salvage insurance firm of George M. Ruddy Co. from 1973 to 1984 when he joined Stoner and Co. of Woburn, Mass.

He leaves his wife, Moonyeen, two sons, his mother, and brother Richard '63.

