

August 17, 1968 at Bethesda Hospital in his native city.

The third generation in a family of Cincinnati physicians, and a specialist in internal medicine, Bill maintained an extensive private-group practice, served on the staffs of five hospitals in the area, and was assistant clinical professor of medicine at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine, from which he received his medical degree in 1938.

After attending Dartmouth, Bill transferred to the University of Cincinnati, graduating with the Class of 1934. He entered the United States Navy in 1943, and served three years, including 21 months abroad during World War II. He was active also in the Naval Reserve, where he attained the rank of commander.

Bill was a "joiner" in the best sense of the term—a member of Delta Tau Delta at Dartmouth, and of Alpha Kappa Kappa (social-medical) and Alpha Omega Alpha (honorary medical) at Cincinnati. He was also a member of the American Legion, the Masons and the Shrine; a past member of the Delhi (Oak Hills) School Board; a past chairman of the Board of Trustees of Shiloh Community Methodist Church; and chairman and past president of the trustees of Dunham Hospital.

In 1939 Bill married Muriel Sigourney Stridsberg, who survives him, along with their three daughters and two sons. Funeral services were held on August 19 at the Shiloh Church, and burial was in Spring Grove, with military honors.

Bill's passing will be mourned by all those who were privileged to know him during his years at Dartmouth, and by the hundreds and thousands of Ohioans who benefitted from his medical skills.
