

dren, including David N. '71, and 13 grandchildren.

1949

John G. Flanagan

died last July 27 of pulmonary fibrosis at Shadyside Hospital in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Jack had retired as president of Universal Welding Inc. at 65 but pursued a second career in real estate. He came to Dartmouth after graduation from Valley Forge Military Academy. At Dartmouth he majored in English and was a member of Beta Theta Pi.

He served with distinction in World War II and was awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star with clusters, Purple Heart, and the Croix de Guerre.

Jack is survived by his wife, Barbara, daughters Kathryn and Mary, son Timothy, and five grandchildren.

John Paul McGrath

we have recently learned, died last May in Mexico. He is survived by his wife, Nancy, and children Jeanne, Dorothy, and Stanley.

John came to Dartmouth after serving during World War II in the 47th Bomb Group in Europe as an aerial gunner. He graduated as an English major and was business manager of the Dartmouth Quarterly. While in Mexico, where he was an investment consultant, John was president of the Dartmouth Club of Mexico, from 1964 to 1968.

1951

Donald M. Binks

last May 28 died of a heart attack at Fox Lake, Ill. Don was president of Binks Electronics, Inc., a Chicago consulting firm that specialized in machine design, automation, and electrical engineering. One notable example of his work was his design for Swift of a machine that made 500 miles of sausage casing a day. Don's business was international in scope and took him to Italy in the 1970s.

Upon graduation from Dartmouth, Don married Elizabeth Lobdell, with whom he had two daughters, Rebecca Binks and Elizabeth Binks Kritzler. Don and Elizabeth divorced in 1964. Don is also survived by his mother, Lyda Tate Binks, and a grandson Paul.

Clifford Harrison

as previously reported in the Class Notes, died suddenly of a heart attack on December 8, 1988, at his home in Colonie, near Albany, N.Y. He is survived by his wife Helen, his daughters Mary Ellen Harrison and Joanne Harrison Moran, and his brothers William and Fred.

Cliff was born in Walpole, Mass., and attended schools there as well as Kimball Union Academy. At Dartmouth, he majored in sociology, was a member of Phi Gamma Delta and Dragon, and was on the Interfraternity Council.

As an athlete, Cliff will be long remembered for his exceptional skills as a hockey player during his varsity seasons of 1948-51, during which he was named All-Ivy each year and captain his senior year. In 1952 he was a member of the U.S. Olympic team at the winter games in Oslo. After College, Cliff entered the U.S. Marine Corps for three years, served in Japan as an officer. After graduation he worked in Walpole and the Albany area.

1952

Bernard J. Lewis

of Portland, Maine, died last May 27 after a long, courageous battle with cancer. Throughout those three difficult years, he left to enlist in the navy. He returned to his beloved Portland and started his business career there. Bernie became a successful businessman and respected civic leader at the local and state levels. At various times he headed several companies: CEO of Bay-side Enterprises, president of Penobscot Poultry Co., CEO of Quaker State Farms,

Clifford Harrison

12-8-98

For the tricky questions on pages 30 and 31,

Tradition Quiz Answers

A perfect score qualifies you as a True Dartmouth Traditionalist who has earned the right to at least one angry letter to the editor about unchecked change at the College. A score of "9" or less means you have better things to do than bother about rituals. In which case, why did you take the quiz in the first place?

1. C. The practice, which lived and died in the nineteenth century, was called "Horning." The gatherings were known as "Shirt-Tails," owing to the students' late-night dis-habile.
2. A.
3. D. We faked the picture by posing Whitney Campbell Intern Clayton Gates '90 in zero-degree weather and throwing imitation snow. Clayton says he's feeling much better.
4. A. Once a serious contest involving old Dartmouth songs, since the 1960s Hums has consisted mostly of satirical ditties.
5. C.
6. A. Despite alumni rumors to the contrary, trip leaders are encouraged to teach their 'shmen the (revised) Alma Mater and the now-traditional Salty Dog Rag.
7. A. Tea has been held since Sanborn opened.
8. B.
9. B.
10. A. But a more popular nose is on Warner Bentley's bust in the Hopkins Center, probably because of its high-traffic location.
11. B.
12. A.
13. D. Although no organized contest has been held, almost every dorm room has a phone, and job-hunting seniors consider answering machines essential equipment. If a message competition had been established, Jack Steinberg '88 would have won it two years ago. Steinberg, who was editor-in-chief of The Dartmouth, could do a convincing imitation of James O. Freedman. He faked the president's voice to record a friend's message. "Leave something intellectual at the sound of the cello," the machine said.
14. B. Local safety officials fervently hope it soon will be a failed tradition.
15. D. An unlikely practice; most students don't eat breakfast.
16. A.
17. D.
18. D. If anyone would like to start doing it, though, the editors would be interested in joining.