EDWARD E. HAZEN, JR.

Edward E. Hazen, Jr. PhD, a member of a four-generation Dartmouth family that dates back to his great-grandfather, Reverend Norman Hazen, class of 1840, died on December 5, 2017 in Bryan, Texas. He is survived by his wife of 58 years, Anne; 3 children; 4 grandchildren; and his brother Robert.

Ted was a professor of Biochemistry at Texas A & M University for 20 years. In this role he was a respected teacher, a graduate student advisor, a recruiter of doctoral candidates, and a dedicated researcher. His work focused on the structure of proteins. Earlier in his academic career he served on the faculty at MIT following post-doctoral studies there. He received his PhD from Harvard University.

At Dartmouth, Ted majored in Chemistry and was a member of Gamma Delta Chi fraternity. Following graduation he served for 3 years in the U.S. Marine Corps as a radio operator in Korea.

"Giving back" was a theme in Ted's life. He was a founding member of his church, sang in its choir and served on many of its committees. He was a dedicated leader and volunteer for 30 years at Brazos Church Pantry and received a Good Neighbor award from Brazos Beautiful for his conscientious commitment to picking up trash.

A gentle, quiet man, he loved reading, long walks, classical music, gardening (he was famous for his compost pile), traveling to see the world, and pets of all kinds.
