Joseph Lindner, Jr., MD

Joseph Lindner, Jr. died on July 22, 2018 in Hilton Head, South Carolina. He was a medical doctor, a professor of internal medicine, a hospital administrator, and an executive search consultant specializing in recruitment of senior health care professionals.

Joe attended the Asheville School in North Carolina where he later became a member of the Board of Trustees and a lifelong active contributor. At Dartmouth he was a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity and Casque and Gauntlet senior society.

He earned a medical degree at the University of Cincinnati where he later was a member of the faculty of the School of Medicine and vice president for medical affairs. During his years in Cincinnati he initiated the first residency program in emergency medicine. He served for two years as a Lieutenant Commander in the U.S. Navy.

Joe's interest in management led him to attend the Harvard School of Public Health, from which he received a masters degree in 1976. He became president of St. Barnabas Hospital in Livingston, New Jersey. He retired in 1995 to Hilton Head.

Joe loved life and was usually the life of the party. On Hilton Head he golfed and served as an Elder in his church. He traveled widely with his wife Doris, also a physician, making it a point to sample the "best" hamburger in all fifty states.

In addition to his wife, Joe is survived by two children and five grandchildren. His daughter, Laura Lindner Sankey, graduated from Dartmouth in 1986.
