

Peter K Little
10-26-02

his wife, Sue, were taking snow from the roof of their house in Hanover. At Dartmouth he majored in education and was a member of Gamma Delt, DOC and the band. After graduation he married Sue and they moved to New Jersey, where he was an executive with the Boy Scouts of America. He later served with the BSA in upper New York State. Upon moving back to Hanover in 1973, Len continued his career of service to Dartmouth and his class as mini-reunion chairman for many years. From 1973 to 1984 he and Sue owned and managed the Hillwinds Gift Shop on Main Street in Hanover. Later they both exercised their experience at Campion's. From 1986 to 1990 Len was director of the Hanover Chamber of Commerce, and for 25 years until his death was floor manager of the Annual Hanover Home Show. Survivors include Sue, daughters Susan and Sally and two grandsons.

Richard D. McCarthy died March 29, 2002, in Bermuda Run, North Carolina, where he had been living with his wife, Suzanne. Dick came to Dartmouth from Classical High School in Springfield, Massachusetts. An English major, he was a member of the DOC and was on the ski patrol. After graduation he took courses at the Rhode Island School of Design. His career in design involved him in several firms until he started his own company whose clients were in the United States, Sweden, South America and Italy. Dick loved sailing and racing, was a member of the New York Yacht Club and The Corinthians, where he was the "master" (comodore) for two years. Another interest was playing drums in various big bands. Dartmouth family members include his father, Walter H. McCarthy '13, and uncle, Eugene R. Cowles '17, both deceased. Besides Suzanne, Dick leaves four children, two stepchildren and two grandchildren.

William Stark died January 25, 2003. After graduation he returned to his hometown, Nashotah, Wisconsin, where he joined the family candy manufacturing business. He became president in 1959. The business was sold in 1988. Bill pursued a career in writing and was the author of seven books, primarily histories of the upper Midwest. An article chronicling his experiences as a seaman on the barque Pamir, which was the last Cape Horn voyage made in commercial sail, appeared in the April 1993 issue of the Dartmouth Alumni Magazine. Bill was married to Judy Stark, who survives him with their four children. Dartmouth family members include his son, Peter '76, and several cousins and nephews.

Charles L. Wilkes died at his retirement home in Vero Beach, Florida, on November 15, 2002. He came to Dartmouth from Roosevelt High School in Washington, D.C. A history major, he was a member of the DOC and DTD. He received his law degree from D.C.'s Georgetown University in 1954 and practiced law with Wilkes, Artis in W and Brewer in Bet was admitted to Supreme Court. Charles was chairperson of the D.C. Bar Association, which drafted the Comprehensive Probate Reform Act of 1980. He was very active in the YMCA and Masons organizations. He and his wife, Nancy, were the parents of four children and grandparents of eight.

1951

Peter Knox Little died on October 26, 2002, of cancer in Manville, Rhode Island. After graduation from Pawtucket, Rhode Island, East High School he served in the Army Air Corps before matriculating with the class of 1951. Already married, he spent all four years living in Wigwam Circle. "P.K." majored in art and was a member of Dragon Society. His career was in packaging and printing, 1952-95. He was the fifth member of his family to attend Dartmouth, having been preceded by a '14, a '23, a '40 and '43. Three younger brothers graduated in '53, '55 and '57. Surviving him are one child, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

1952

Conrad S. Carstens of Palmyra, Virginia, died at his home on January 24. Connie came to Dartmouth from Manhasset, New York. He majored in history and was very active on The Dartmouth. He served as the paper's editorial chairman, responsible for editorials, columns and letters to the editor. It was truly a labor of love, which he enjoyed enormously. Connie started out on a newspaper career, working on a Worcester, Massachusetts, paper and as editor of an Army post newspaper. He obtained a master's degree from the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism. But he soon gravitated into public relations work. Connie spent 34 years with a major New York PR firm, now called Magnet Communications. He retired in 1995 as a senior vice president. Connie served his class as newsletter editor (twice) and for 20 years was the class matching gifts coordinator. He is survived by Lois and sons Christopher '79, Timothy, Stephen and Jeffrey.

Dwight F. Ketcham died of a heart attack on February 18, 2003, at his home in Gulph Mills, Pennsylvania. Coming to Dartmouth from Summit, New Jersey, he majored in English and graduated magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa. After graduation Dwight joined the Ketcham Co., a family agency that served as the sales arm for the famous lighters and other products of the Zippo Manufacturing Co. Dwight assumed direction of the business in 1970 and was joined by his son in 1996. Their territory was the entire northeast United States. Dwight also served as Zippo's representative to various national technical standards organizations. Dwight's avocations included travel and activities supporting the arts in the Philadelphia area. He leaves his wife, Jacqueline, and children Elizabeth and Michael.

uation he served as an intelligence specialist in the Army and upon discharge, assumed management of a 10,000-acre cattle farm owned by his grandfather in LaGrange, Missouri. He taught Russian at Culver-Stockton College in Canton, Missouri. In the 1980s he moved to New York City where, recovering from alcohol addition, he discovered his talent for counseling and mentoring alcoholics. He was known throughout New York State for those he helped in recovery. He also continued to raise cattle as a partner of the Pierson Brothers Cattle Co. through 1996. At Dartmouth Emery majored in Russian civilization and was a member of DKE and the Sphinx. Emery also played varsity football for three years. He was predeceased by his wife, Diane, and is survived by sons Emery and Peter; daughters Carol, Michele and Roxanne; five grandchildren; and his first wife, Joan.

John H.R. Richardson died in his sleep in Zellwood, Florida, on January 14, 2002. John left Dartmouth early, and then attended the University of Minnesota, graduating in 1956 with a B.A. in business administration. He entered the family business, HMR Electronics in Minneapolis. With his first wife he had children Lorne and Michael, and is survived by a number of grandchildren.

Stephen A. Sanderson died of a stroke at his Clearwater, Florida, home on October 27, 2002. Shortly after graduation from Dartmouth he entered the Army, serving in the Korean War. Upon release from the Army in 1956 Steve attended Wharton School of Business at the University of Pennsylvania. He joined Mutual of New York advancing to the position of VP for management personnel and development. In 1973 he joined a small consulting company, Teren Co., of Virginia Beach as executive VP, staying until retirement in 1985. In retirement he assisted in managing a golf shop and worked in real estate. Steve also was involved with voluntary literacy tutors and enjoyed golf and water exercise. At Dartmouth Steve was a member of Sigma Nu and played lacrosse and in the marching band. He is survived by two daughters and by wife Mickey Nault.

1956

Ewing "Huff" Park Goff died October 5, 2001, and is survived by his wife, Esther, and their three children. Following his graduation he served in the Air Force for 28 years, rising to the rank of lieutenant colonel. During that time he continued his education, obtaining a bachelor of arts in 1964 from Northern Michigan University in mathematics in 1964 and a master of arts from the University of Washington in psychology in 1988. Following his service in the Air Force he became a captain for Trans World Airlines. He was a trustee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars