

Marcus V Cole
6-4-20

ected to join the Army in March 1941 rather than graduate. After WWII he attended Southern Methodist University and worked for TWA and Eastern airlines. Returning to military service in 1951, Gus served in the Air Force as a captain and master navigator until 1966. He then began a second career as a teacher in the New Orleans public schools. Gus is survived by Rue, his wife of 50 years, and their children Tristan and Diana.

1942

Harry Hatten Burdick of Omaha, Nebraska, died on August 18, 1997. Harry, who retired in 1988, had been a district manager for Helene Curtis, Shaeffer Pen and the Muzak Omaha office. His wife Meryl predeceased him, and he is survived by their four children and three grandchildren, according to our latest information in 1992.

1943

Thomas Hodgson Heneage died November 25, 1999. Tom grew up in Oak Park, Illinois, where he attended the Hill School prior to entering Dartmouth. Tom did not graduate, and after settling in Pacifica, California, attended Golden State College, where he majored in the field of insurance. He received his degree in 1953 and worked for Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. He was married to Eileen (Schmidt), who survives him. There are no children. At the time of his death he was living in Westerly, Rhode Island.

1944

Joseph Goldstein, professor emeritus at Yale Law School, died of a heart attack on March 12 at Yale New Haven Hospital. Born in Springfield, Massachusetts, Joe received his A.B. from Dartmouth in 1943, and briefly attended Tuck School. During WW II he served in the U.S. Army and was stationed in occupied Japan. Following the war he entered Yale Law School, and took time off after his first year to earn a Ph.D. at the London School of Economics, where he also met his future wife and often collaborator, Sonja. He was a Fulbright Scholar in 1949-50. Returning to New Haven, he graduated from Yale Law School in 1952 and four years later joined its faculty, beginning an association of more than 40 years. He is survived by his wife; brother E. Ernest; sister Miriam Sommer; sons Joshua, Jeremiah and Daniel '79; daughter Anne; and eight grandchildren.

1945

John William Allen, a lifetime resident of the Chicago area, died February 12 in Evanston, Illinois. Born in Chicago and raised in Wilmette, John came to Dartmouth from new Trier High School. During WW II he served in New Guinea and the Philippines with the U.S. Army Air Corps. He returned to Dartmouth to earn his M.B.A. in 1948. John's professional career as a fourth generation member of J.W. Allen & Co., a leader in the accounting industry. As president and CEO from 1965 to 1990 and as chairman until retirement in 1998, he helped initiate the development of bakeries in supermarkets and was recognized as a pioneer in the evolution of retail baking. An avid sailor, John served on the board of the International Yacht Racing Union and was a member of the Olympic committee. He is survived by his wife of 53 years, Janice, sons J. William '69 and Douglas and five grandchildren.

Rupert Burdette Daniels died February 5 at Salem (Mass.) Hospital. A resident of Lynnfield, Massachusetts, he had been employed as a hardware consultant after a number of years in the contract-builders hardware business. A WWII Army veteran, "Rupe" was an avid golfer and the Massachusetts state amateur golf champion in 1954. He was a member of the Thompson Country Club of North Reading and a past member of the Salem Country Club. A diaconate at the Lynnfield Centre Congregational Church, he was a choir member for more than 30 years and served on many boards and committees. Rupe is survived by his wife, Virginia; son Mark; daughters Susan Whittier, Linda Hrushka and Elizabeth Asher; and brothers R. Wellington '36, Dixon H. '43. Brother Donald S. '50 predeceased him.

Ralph Gannett Tyler Jr. died of cancer on January 16 in Conway, South Carolina. Bud came to Dartmouth from Phillips Exeter and was an active participant in football and wrestling. As a Navy V-12 student he received a bachelor's degree in civil engineering from Thayer School. After serving as a lieutenant with the Sea Bees in the Pacific, he returned to Hanover for his master's degree in mechanical engineering. He was president of Green Key. He served '45 as secretary/chairman. Bud spent seven years with Bethlehem Steel, then became co-owner of Bolton-Pratt Construction Co. in Cleveland. After he retired he was head of the Ashtabula County, Ohio, building department. He moved to Myrtle Trace, Florida, in 1995. His survivors include his wife, Dolores, daughters Elizabeth Hast and Martha Tyler, stepdaughter Karen Capadona and five grandchildren.

1949

John David Fitzgerald died on October 5, 1999, of a heart attack in Branford, Connecticut. He had a massive stroke in 1991, and was bedridden until his death. John came to Dartmouth from Hamden, Connecticut, but prepared at the Peddie School. Prior to coming to Dartmouth, he served in the U.S. Navy, and while in Hanover was a member of Sigma Chi and Dragon. He majored in history and after graduation returned to Connecticut and lived and

1950

William C. Stowell Jr. died in Highland, New York, on January 29. Bill came to Dartmouth with a large contingent from Bronxville, New York, having graduated from Culver Military Academy and serving in the Army Air Corps. Leaving Dartmouth in 1949, he worked for M. Steintal Co. and Colgate and was recalled by the Air Force during the Korean War. In addition to a successful career in manufacturing, sales and marketing, including being president/CEO of three companies, Bill owned and operated a working farm near Poughkeepsie for 33 years with the able assistance of his wife, Beverly, and their two sons. In his spare time Bill served as director of several companies, was involved with real estate and was active in his church, school, Boy Scouts, Little League, United Fund, the American Legion, SCORE and interviewing for CMI and Dartmouth. He leaves his wife, two sons and two granddaughters.

1951

Marcus Voorhees Cole died June 4 at a hospital near Fairfield, Connecticut, his home of 44 years, after collapsing suddenly while playing in a ping pong tournament. Mark came to Dartmouth from Attleboro, Massachusetts. He majored in psychology, belonged to the French Club and was an avid musician, playing with the Collegium Musicum and the Concert Band at college and in many dance bands later in life. After serving in the Air Force from 1951 to 1954, he received an accounting degree from the University of Bridgeport. He had a career in finance in New York City for 27 years, then worked at Connecticut National Bank, and retired as a vice president of People's Bank in Fairfield. He was active in politics, serving on the Republican town committee. Mark is survived by his wife, Margaret, four children and five grandchildren.

1952

William E. McAndrew, who died January 20, graduated from the College and, a year later, from the Medical School. Although he finished his medical degree at Harvard, he steadfastly rejected it as his alma mater. From there, he moved west through an internship in Philadelphia, surgical residency in Michigan and then to the practice in the Pacific Northwest, in Edmonds, Washington. His training was interrupted by a stint of surgery in Port Lyautey, Morocco, as a Navy surgeon. He also worked as a surgeon in American Samoa in an effort to help the rampant health problems there. In 1972 he married Margaret and they had four daughters and a son. He and his family combined his professional life with many happy exploits and adventures.

Sept/Oct 2000