

ty and the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences. He edited or wrote 12 books, most of which dealt with international politics. When he retired from UNC Andy became part-owner of kayak builder Wilderness Systems and later started a publishing company, Coastal Carolina Press, which has grown in the field of North Carolina environment and history. He is survived by his wife of 58 years, Anne, children Rebecca, David and Donald and x grandchildren.

Richard Russell Steiner died of pneumonia January 31 at the University of Utah Hospital in Salt Lake City. Dick left Dartmouth early in 1942 to join the Army Air Corps and fly glider planes and C-47s in the South Pacific. He flew more than 50 combat missions and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his service. After WWII Dick returned to complete his education and graduated Phi Beta Kappa with a degree in economics from Dartmouth in 1948. He then joined American Linen Supply Co., now known as AlSCO, the Salt Lake City business started in 1889 by his grandfather. In 1959 Dick took over the helm from his father and the company became a world leader among industrial laundry plants. His wife, Colleen, whom he married in 1949, died in 1978. He is survived by sons Robert and Kevin, daughter Sheila and six grandchildren.

John Walter Tolley III died September 10, 2003. He enlisted in the Navy V-12 Unit at Dartmouth, adding to WWII service as an LST gunnery officer, and retirement as a first lieutenant in 1946. Postwar occupations included advertising and public relations responsibilities with J.W. Tolley & Associates in Worthington, Ohio, and sales promotion with Strunk Equipment Co. and Union Fork & Hoe Co. in Columbus, Ohio. He was first married in 1948. He leaves children Bruce, Jeffrey, Steven, John, Beth, Jan, David and Bradford and his wife, Barbara.

1947

William Oliver Bailey died of pneumonia in New York City on January 28. He joined the class in the Navy V-12 program from Northampton (Massachusetts) High School. He served in the Naval Air Force in the V-5 program and graduated with a major in economics. He joined Aetna Life and Casualty Co. in 1954 and rose to become president and vice chairman. He founded the Municipal Bond Insurance Association, the nation's largest insurer of municipal bonds, and was its first chairman and CEO. He also served as CEO of Yankee Energy Systems and of Terra Nova Holdings in Bermuda, where he lived from 1977-2002. In retirement in Moultonborough, New Hampshire, he was interested in church work and philately. He was the benefactor of several charities and established the William O. Bailey Family Scholarship Fund, of which Dartmouth is a trustee. He is survived by his wife, Carole, son George '73, daughters Jane '76 and Carolyn and six grandchildren.

Julian Walter Sayer died in Stamford, Connecticut on March 14. He joined the class from the Grace Mann School in Riverdale, New York, majored in economics. He participated in interfraternity athletics, the Dartmouth Log, Interdormitory Council and WDCR. He served in the Army Air Corps as a pre-aviation cadet from 1944-45. He was the founder and president of the Sayer Group, a firm involved in consulting and credit scoring systems in Stamford, and had worked in Atlanta in a similar firm. He was a registered representative for Hayden Stone and served as a justice of the peace, commissioner in the parks and recreation commission and member of the city Democratic committee. He was active in organizing monthly alumni luncheons in New York and served as a class agent from 1986-2002. He is survived by his wife, Joan, a son and a daughter.

1948

Lloyd Thurman Krumm Jr. died May 20 of Alzheimer's. On retirement he and Joan moved to the Eastman community in Grantham, New Hampshire, and were active in Upper Valley and class affairs until his passing. Soon after arriving in Hanover he joined the Navy. On his return he majored in economics and was a member of DOC and Gamma Delta Chi, moving on to get his M.C.S. from Tuck School in 1950. Lloyd went to work for International Paper Co., rising to the position of sales manager. He remained there until 1975, moving on to Federal Paper Board and Mead Corp., from which he retired. He served as president of the Dartmouth Club of Bergen County, New Jersey, and as an alumni councilor, receiving the Dartmouth Alumni Award for his work in community and Dartmouth affairs. Joan survives him with sons Randy '77 and Barry '80 and their families.

David Beckwith Miller Jr. died of pancreatic cancer in Portland, Oregon, on May 26 attended by family members. He came to Hanover from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and Hackley School. At Dartmouth he shared ski team duties with classmates Sonny Drury and Colin Stewart and was a member of Cabin & Trail. A pre-med major, he went to New York University for his M.D. and settled in Portland, where he practiced general surgery for many years. He continued his interest in outdoor life by hunting, fishing and boating. Dave fondly remembered his ski team days and Ross McKinney's leadership in outdoor skills. He is survived by his wife, Ellen, and daughters Wendy, Gail and Elizabeth.

Jorge Saralegui died December 10, 2004, of Parkinson's disease in Miami, Florida. He came to Dartmouth from Belen Jesuit School in Havana, Cuba, was a member of Psi Upsilon and Sphinx and majored in economics. He and Adelaida lived in Westchester County, New York, for many years. He was with Overseas Ventures and in the publishing business. They eventually moved to Miami, where he last reported in as a publishing consultant. He is survived by Adelaida and chil-

William Warren Tharion died on January 20. He came to Dartmouth in the Navy V-12 program. He had checked in for the 50th reunion book and was then living in Palm Beach, Florida, reporting a career as an accountant, having completed additional courses therein following his Dartmouth education major. In Palm Beach he had an active retirement on the golf course and at the bridge table. He is survived by children Karen, Deborah, Janet and Laurel.

1951

Josiah Morton Briggs Jr. died of lymphoma at home in Wakefield, Rhode Island, on June 6. Born in New Bedford, Massachusetts, Mort was raised in Williamsville, New York, graduating from its high school before entering Dartmouth. He majored in physics, sang in the Glee Club and was a member of Sigma Nu and ROTC. After three years in the Navy and two with Eastman Kodak, Mort entered academia with graduate studies at Columbia, earning his master's and Ph.D. by 1962. He taught history of science at Kansas State and University of Colorado before moving to University of Rhode Island for a 30-year career ending in 1999. He was the chair of the history department and also served as a member of the South Kingston town council. Recreation for Mort included golf, running and bookkeeping. He leaves his wife, Barbara "Babs," son Jody and daughter Nina.

Robert Perrin Hackstaff died July 4 of malignant melanoma at the Hospice of Centennial, Colorado. Born and raised in Denver, Bob graduated from its East High School, majored in history and was a member of Sigma Nu and the Glee Club. He attended Tuck School in his senior year and then went to work in the family real estate firm, Frederick Ross Co. He became president and CEO in 1970 and held that position for 18 years. During that period he met Mary, his second wife, and merged her two girls into his family, also two girls. In 1977 Bob, with four other CEOs, established a network of independent companies that became ONCOR International. Owned by 52 independent real estate companies, it became the world's largest full-service firm. He is survived by Mary; daughters Karen, Karla, Paula and Diane; seven grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

William Elijah Hosler Jr. died on May 5 in Scottsdale, Arizona, of chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. He was born in Niagara Falls, New York, attended the DeVeaux School, majored in psychology and was a member of Sigma Chi. His three-year tour of duty in the Army included an infantry school commission, a platoon leadership in Korea and a Bronze Star. Bill obtained an M.B.A. from Babson in 1956 and launched his commercial banking career in Detroit. In 1979 he moved to Phoenix, Arizona, to join Citibank, ul-