

He leaves his wife Bretice and sons Albert Jr. of Ventura and Kurt of Whittier.

ROGER K. WOLBARST '43

1945

ROBERT LEBLANG SAMILSON of Belvedere-Tiberon, Calif., a town across the bay from San Francisco, passed away on March 10. A native of New York, he came to Dartmouth from Mamaroneck High School and joined the Navy V-12 program. He saw duty in Europe, in the Mideast waters of the Mediterranean, and in the Pacific as an ensign on the destroyer escort U.S.S. Naifeh and was discharged in 1946 as a lieutenant (j.g.). He received his B.A. from Dartmouth and went on to New York Medical College, where he was awarded his M.D. in 1950, ranking second in a class of 110. While in medical school, he was married in 1947 to the former Marjorie Rubin, whom he had met while she was a student at Columbia Teachers College.

Bob completed his internship at Mount Sinai Hospital and residencies for surgery at Bellevue Hospital and for orthopedic surgery at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center — all in New York. He also took a postgraduate course in bone and joint pathology at the Hospital for Joint Disease, New York.

He was not only in the private practice of orthopedic surgery, but also an associate in bone and joint surgery at Stanford University School of Medicine, a clinical professor in the Department of Orthopedic Surgery at the University of California, and on the staff of several area hospitals. His service to educational and governmental agencies, his memberships in honor societies, and the awards he has received are too numerous to mention here; and yet he still had time to be an active member of the Masonic Scottish Rite, San Francisco Bodies, Dartmouth Outing Club of Northern California, Sierra Club, Black Point Game Bird Club, American Rhododendron Society, and Golden Retriever Club.

With all his achievements, awards, and honors, Bob remained a modest and unassuming man with a quick and gentle sense of humor. He was a devoted husband and loving father and always looked forward to returning home whenever the demands of his profession took him to far-away places. He is survived by his wife Marge, four daughters — Terry, Leslie, Linda, and Cathy; and a brother, Norman. The class extends loving sympathy to each member of his family.

♦ ♦ ♦

WALTER JOSEPH ZEBROWSKI of Enfield, Conn., died of a heart attack on December 2, 1983. A native of Westfield, Mass., Walt attended Trinity and Dartmouth College before he joined the Bigelow Sanford Carpet Company in Thompsonville, Conn. He became plant manager in 1966 and held that position until his retirement. He is survived by his wife Frances; two brothers, Stanley '33 and Edward '50; a son, Mark '66; and a nephew, Stephen '76. His classmates extend their sympathy to members of his family.

1951

JOHN WILL NOBLE died suddenly on April 19, 1983, as a result of an accident. He resided in San Antonio, Tex.

John was a teacher, associated since 1974 with the Northside Independent School District of San Antonio. Prior to that, John had been in the U.S. Air Force, where he served in engineering management and achieved the rank of lieutenant colonel. John had joined the Air Force in 1952 after Dartmouth.

At Dartmouth, John was a member of Kappa Phi Kappa fraternity, the Glee Club, the Forensic Union, and the Interdormitory Council. John did post-graduate work at both the University of Oklahoma in 1964 and at the University of Texas at San Antonio, where he received his master's degree in 1973.

John's interests were flying, photography, and young people, and he was always active in Toastmasters as well as in Scouting.

He is survived by his wife Patsy and a son, Richard.

HAZEL CARLSON, familiar to generations of Dartmouth students from the sixties and seventies as the piano player at Film Society programs, died on March 20 at her home in Stowe, Vt. She came to Hanover to take up a nursing job at Dick's House and was also able to find an audience for her musical talents with the Film Society. She had studied piano and played for the silents during her formative years in her native Stowe. In Hanover, she did sound track recordings for Birth of a Nation, the Lillian Gish film Way Down East, and Laurel and Hardy and Buster Keaton movies; these sound tracks are now in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. She also opened her home to the Film Society directorate and became a good friend and adviser to many students. She was recalled in an obituary in the Stowe paper as a "small, feisty" woman who "had a marvelous way of helping, advising, and enjoying her many friends, from seven to seventy." David Stackpole '56, a lawyer in Stowe, delivered the eulogy at memorial services in Stowe. She is survived by two sons, two grandchildren, and a brother.

1971

BRUCE GLAZE KITCHEN died June 6, 1983, in Brookline, Mass. He is survived by his parents, Margaret D. Kitchen of Bedford Hills, N.Y., and Merle L. Kitchen of Katonah, N.Y., and by two brothers, Douglas and Scott Kitchen of Katonah.

Bruce and his family moved to Katonah from Bethpage, N.Y., in 1960. He attended Katonah Elementary School and was graduated from John Jay High School in 1967 with honors as valedictorian of his class. He was an Eagle Scout and active in sports.

At Dartmouth, he was active in student government and a member of Phoenix senior society. He was graduated cum laude with a major in English literature and a minor in art and architecture. He continued his interest in art and architecture, traveling throughout Europe. He also worked with the Amigos de las Americas as a volunteer and spent several weeks in Honduras inculcating natives.

He moved to the Boston area in 1974, becoming an active member of the macrobiotic community. Beginning in 1980, he worked as a brick tuck pointer and assisted in the restoration of several Boston landmarks including the Diamond Union Building, the Heath Company Building, the old Woolworth Building (now part of the Harvard Coop), and the Marcus Garvey Building in Roxbury, Mass.