

1973 to 1990. He had been living most recently in La Mesa, California, and is survived by his wife, F. Corinne.

1946

Frederick M. Garfield died on July 25 in Mt. Lebanon, Pennsylvania. Fred attended Middlesex School in Concord, Massachusetts, and Harvard University, entering the Navy V-12 program in 1944. Fred served as a Navy ensign, and completed his studies at Dartmouth, graduating in 1946. While at Dartmouth, he was on the varsity football team. After graduation he received a M.B.A. degree from Syracuse University. He married Elizabeth Tiffany in 1949, and joined the Koppers Co. of Pittsburgh in 1950, retiring in 1985 after 35 years of service. At Koppers he served as manager and later as director of Koppers market research and planning. After retiring, he was a business consultant specializing in high-technology start-ups. Fred was a member of the Dartmouth Club of Western Pennsylvania and interviewed prospective students. Fred is survived by his wife Elizabeth, son Frederick Jr. and daughter-in-law Bette, son Leonard and daughter Constance and son-in-law Paul.

1947

Perry Emmanuel Anderson died mid-November 1998 at Elizabeth General Hospital, Princeton, New Jersey, following a stroke. After graduating from Curtis High School in Staten Island, New York, he attended Dartmouth in the Navy V-12 program. While at Dartmouth he was a member of Phi Delta Theta and participated in intercollegiate wrestling. Subsequently he became a pilot in the Navy Air Corps in WW II. After he graduated he worked as a national field sales manager for more than 20 years with the Lenox China Co. He later worked in the field for Wood & Sons in jewelry sales. His wife, Virginia Hughes, predeceased him. He is survived by sons Perry and Peter and two nieces.

George Francis Carroll Jr. died on January 8, 1999. After graduating from Norwalk (Connecticut) High School, he went to Dartmouth in the V-12 program in the summer of 1943. He subsequently served in the Navy in Washington, D.C., becoming a midshipman in the Navy Supply Corps in Boston and ending up as a lieutenant, i.g., in Manila. He returned to Dartmouth to graduate with honors in business administration with the class of 1947. He attended Tuck with the class of 1948, but did not graduate. After Tuck he graduated from Harvard Law School in 1950. He served as executive secretary to the late U.S. Senator Brian McMahon in Washington, D.C., then took up general law, with stints during the next 46 years as prosecuting attorney and judge of the Norwalk City Court. He is survived by his wife, Julie, sons Charles '80 and Robert '82, daughter Julie Ann and two grandchildren.

Oliver Alexander Martin died in Grantham, New Hampshire, on July 11, 1999. He was born in West Virginia and was raised by his mother and grandfather after losing his father when he was 12. Turning down a football scholarship, Pat served as a "Seabee" in WWII. While in the Navy he met his wife, Ruth Gildea, and they were married on December 1, 1945. At college he was a member of the V-12 unit and graduated in 1947. Careerwise, he started out at Bethlehem Steel, developing a management training program that is still used widely. As a foreman at U.S. Rubber Co. in Connecticut, he helped organize a group of men to dig the factory out following the Flood of 1955. He worked 30 years in the rubber industry, ending up as GM of UniRoyal Indo-Products worldwide. He leaves his wife; sons John and Timothy; daughters Virginia, Angela and Mary; sister Rachel; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Earle Tyler Welch died September 13, 1996, in Wilmington, North Carolina, of heart failure, the College learned recently. He attended Cheshire Academy and graduated from Ashville School. After attending the Navy V-12 program at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, he graduated from Dartmouth. While at Dartmouth he was a brother of Phi Delta Alpha. Subsequently, he attended the Sorbonne in Paris and the University of Zurich, Switzerland. Initially he worked for American Express in Paris and later was a stockbroker for Brown, Harris, Stevens in New York City, where he resided for many years. He was active in many civic endeavors and he and his family traveled extensively. His wife, Margaret Elizabeth, predeceased him. He leaves sons Peter and John, daughter Andrea, granddaughters Heather and Erin and sister Karine.

1948

William Cary Jones died in his native Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, in April. He was a member of DOC, ski and cross country teams, Glee Club and Beta Theta Pi. From Hanover he did a year of graduate work in organic chemistry at Penn State before moving back to Pittsburgh and obtaining an M.D. degree from the University of Pittsburgh Medical School. His internship was in Pittsburgh and he settled on a pathology residency in New York. He had been a surgical pathologist until retirement. Bill helped interview Dartmouth applicants. He was divorced and is survived by sons William and James.

Homer P. Young Jr., the recent subject of a feature article on his positive effect on the architecture of the Merrimack Valley, died on April 21. He had been the designer for many public buildings in the area. A native of Haverhill, Massachusetts, Homer came to Dartmouth as a Marine V-12. He returned to campus and obtained a degree in architecture. Returning to Haverhill, he practiced in Massachusetts, Maine and New Hampshire for 37 years. He was a member of Kappa Sigma and a past president of Haverhill Kiwanis and the American Institute of Architects. Homer was an alumni interviewer. On retirement, he and Lyberta moved to nearby Hampstead, New Hampshire. She survives him, as do his four children and two stepchildren.

1949

Raymond George Hammel died at home in Belleville, New Jersey, on February 14. Ray arrived at Dartmouth in the spring of 1946, shortly after his discharge from the Army. He came from Scarsdale, New York, and Iona Prep and majored in English literature. He was a member of Phi Delta Theta. After graduation he held a number of corporate advertising and sales promotion positions before opening his own advertising company, from which he retired. He was awarded the Bronze Star for heroic achievement in action in France. Armed with only an automatic pistol, he gave flank protection to his squad leader when the enemy launched an attack, giving the troops time to reorganize for a counter attack. Ray is survived by sons

Robert Ellsworth Leary died of Alzheimer's on April 8 in Middleboro, Massachusetts. He came to Dartmouth from Middleboro High School and majored in education while also active in intramural sports, the freshman football team and Zeta Psi. After graduation he returned to the Middleboro area, retired from Motorola Inc. and was later a successful group insurance salesman and insurance consultant. He served Dartmouth as vice president and president of the Southeastern Massachusetts Dartmouth Club. He was also an active 4-H Horse Club leader in East Middleboro. Survivors include his wife, Madeline, sons Bradford and Douglas, daughter Christine, six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

1950

Theodore F. Prime died of cancer on June 22, 1988, at his home on Heather Hill, Lake Placid, New York, the College learned recently. A few months before his death, undaunted by his deteriorating condition, he took one last trip with Dartmouth friends and brother Case to his favorite fishing spot, the DuMoine River Rod and Gun Club in Quebec. Ted graduated from Westminster School and was a navigator aboard a B-29 during WW II. He was on the ski team, a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and was famous for bringing spectacular beauties to the camps. After Dartmouth he earned his law degree at Cornell. For many years he was president of Pepsi Cola Bottling Co. of Keeseville, New York. Ted is survived by his wife, Meredith, sons Peter and Jonathan and daughter Darcy.

1951

Langdon Palmer died June 18 at his home on Schooleys Mountain, New Jersey. He died within six weeks of learning he had advanced cancer. Don's passing leaves a giant pair of unfilled shoes in the New Jersey environmental movement, to which he had devoted enormous time and effort for the past two decades, leading and promoting myriad efforts to preserve open space, parklands, wetlands and farms. He was chairman of the New Jersey chapter of the Nature Conservancy for three years and president of the New Jersey Conservation Foundation, which preserved more open space (75,000 acres) than the state park system. Don came to Dartmouth from the Holderness School. He was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon and Green Key and captain of the rifle team, but most of all he was an outdoor enthusiast and DOC stalwart. He graduated after one year at Tuck School, and served two years in the Army, rising to master sergeant and winning the Bronze Star in Korea. He was a banker for more than 30 years, with Chase Manhattan and Horizon Bank in Morristown, New Jersey. He is survived by his wife, Millicent, daughter Jennifer, sons Langdon and Christopher and five grandchildren.

1953

Dean B. Brady died on December 21, 1999. Following graduation Dean served for three years with the U.S. Marine Corps. Upon his return he entered the computer field attaining the position of VP of data processing for the Friden division of Singer in 1968. Later he formed his own computer consulting firm, which he operated for many years. But he had the most fun helping his wife, Betty Lou, run her catering business after hours. Dean was the enroll-