

1944

Malcolm Douglas Corner

died October 20 in a La Grange, Ill., nursing home. He had been in a coma for 14 months following a heart attack in July 1989.

Mac came to Dartmouth from Pittsburg. He majored in engineering and was a member of the track team and Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

He was an instructor at Thayer School 1944-45 and a contracting manager for the American Bridge Division of U.S. Steel from 1946 to 1977. He was then a manufacturers representative and president of Corner Contracting Company until the time of his illness. He was also member of a number of engineering groups and active in scouting, and he was president of the Pittsburg Dartmouth Club in 1956-57 and a member of the Chicago Dartmouth Club from 1958-1989.

Mac is survived by his wife Carolyn, eight children, a brother, James Corner '39, and three Dartmouth nephews.

William Anthony Duffy

died September 22 in a New Haven, Conn., medical center where he had been a patient for a number of years.

Bill came to Dartmouth from Old Saybrook, Conn. He left college for the military in 1942 and subsequently served in four different branches of the Navy. He received his B.S. from Georgetown University after the war and then worked for a variety of companies in the New Haven area. Never married, he was an ardent golfer and traveler. He is survived by a sister.

William Alexander Fead

died October 25 in his home in Westfield, N.J., after a seven year battle with cancer. He came to Dartmouth from Ferndale, Mich., but left after two years to take engineering courses at the University of Michigan, where he graduated with a degree in physics. During World War II he was in a small group of naval officers assigned to the Manhattan atomic bomb project at Los Alamos, N.M.

After the war he held management positions with Johnson and Johnson, Hudson Pulp and Paper Corporation, Shulton Inc. (makers of Old Spice), and American Cyanamid. He retired at the onset of his illness in 1983.

With the local Dartmouth Club he served as an interviewer for many years. As a continuing education officer he developed seminar topics with Alumni Affairs and staged an annual Dartmouth seminar at Princeton. In 1983 he received the Dartmouth Continuing Education Award for the "longest running, the largest, most inventive" club seminar.

He leaves his wife, Hope, four children, including Sandy Fead '70 and Kelly Fead '78, and three grandchildren.

1949

Louis Vollers Farrar

died of cancer August 30 at his home.

After Dartmouth Lou worked for the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, where he was a vice president until he retired to Lyme, N.H., in 1984.

He enjoyed his farm in Lyme where he raised sheep

ous commun

He is survi
dren, three s children.

Brayton Leroy Meyer

died August 17 of an unknown cause. Chink graduated magna cum laude in economics from Dartmouth and received an M.B.A. from Harvard in 1951. He worked for the Standard Oil Company until he established his own series of small businesses in East Aurora, N.Y.

He is survived by his wife, Mary, and two children.

1951

Daniel T. Rownd Jr.

died on July 12 of emphysema at Firelands Hospital in Sandusky, Ohio. At the College, Dan was an economics major. He lettered on the swimming team as a diver, and was a member of Psi Upsilon and Dragon Society.

Following College, Dan married and was comptroller of the Reichart Furniture Company from 1954-60. He later joined the Security National Bank and Trust in Wheeling, W.V.; and before his retirement he was employed by the Dana S. Beane Company in Laconia, N.H.

Dan is survived by his wife, Joyce, a daughter, and two sons.

1955

John Winslow Mansfield

of Lancaster, Calif., died on October 6 after a short illness. John entered Dartmouth from Putnam (Conn.) High School and was a history major. He served as captain of the baseball team his senior year and was a member of Sigma Chi and Sphinx.

John served as a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy for eight years. After leaving the service he joined TWA as a pilot. Until he became ill earlier this year, John was flying TWA L-1011's on domestic flights. He leaves his wife, Judith, whom he married in 1960, three daughters, his mother, and three brothers including William H. Mansfield III '54.

1961

W. Paul Nelson

died at his home November 11 after a sudden illness.

He came to Dartmouth from Coral Gables (Fla.) High School.

For the past 16 years Paul was a marketing representative for Coastal Oil New England Inc. He served as commissioner of energy for the state of New Hampshire under Governor Meldrim Thompson and was a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army during the Vietnam Conflict.

Survivors include his wife, Anita, a daughter, and an aunt.

Daniel T Rownd Jr
7-12-90

at his home in Kumtoro
N.J., on May 18. J.C., or Jake as he was called after graduate school, was a member of Kappa Sigma, Dragon, and the lacrosse and rugby teams at Dartmouth. He received his master's degree in English from Antioch College and was associated with Volunteers in Service and Outward Bound. He was a former member of the Marine Corps Reserve and an avid athlete giving skiing lessons to the blind in Aspen.

More recently, in keeping with his dislike of desk jobs, Jake became a state certified organic farmer in Rumford, and he frequently donated produce to a local soup kitchen. Jake is survived by a sister and a brother.

1975

Lee George Ander Graham

died of AIDS on April 25. He was an active member of Dartmouth Lambda, an association of gay alumni, a proud gay rights activist, and a founder of the Philadelphia chapter of FrontRunners, a running club for gay men and lesbians. In the seventies he was a volunteer for the New York Gay Men's Health Crisis.

A cum laude graduate, Lee was president of Dartmouth's French Club, a member of the Harold Parmington Foundation, and a Rufus Choate Scholar. He received an M.B.A. from Wharton and a master's in architecture from the University of Pennsylvania. He worked in merchant banking at Citibank and in marketing at Optel Communications before he went into architecture in Philadelphia.

Lee was an avowed francophile, and his ashes were scattered on a beach in Cannes, his favorite place. He is survived by his parents and a sister.

—H.A.

Faculty

Lawrence G. Hines

professor of economics emeritus, died after long illness November 24. He was 75.

A 1938 graduate of the University of Kansas, Hines earned master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Minnesota. He taught at Minnesota and served as an intelligence specialist with the Office of Naval Intelligence. He joined the Dartmouth faculty in 1947 and became a full professor in 1953. He served as chair of the economic department and of the social sciences division. Hines was past president of the Dartmouth chapter of the American Association of University Professors. He received an honorary master's degree from Dartmouth in 1952.

Hines authored many articles and several books on economics.

He served as a consultant to various government agencies, the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, and the Sierra Club. An avid canoeist, he participated in two marathons on paddles to the Arctic Ocean.

He is survived by his wife, a son, and one granddaughter. The family has requested that donations be made to the Nature Conservancy.