Leonard Paul DiSavino
May 7, 1939 - October 30, 2016

Leonard Paul DiSavino, of Chappaqua, died Oct 30, 2016, surrounded by love after a courageous battle against bladder cancer. Born May 7, 1939 to Rose and Paul DiSavino, in Weehawken, New Jersey, he was a star athlete and went on to be quarterback at Dartmouth and to graduate from the Tuck Business School. After graduating, he served as an army officer in Germany for two years. He met and fell in love with his wife Eileen in 1969. Soon after, they were married and started their family. In 1975, with Phil Sacks, Len founded and was CEO of TSR Wireless. He was a born leader and the combination of his ambition and charisma led him to be a very successful businessman. People were drawn to Len. He had a bright smile and a great sense of humor. He knew how to enjoy life. He loved to play golf, to travel, enjoyed the arts and being with friends and family. He was strong and optimistic, a loving husband, father, grandfather, and friend.

He served as Class Vice President and was a dedicated class agent.

Len is survived by his wife Eileen, his daughters Melissa, Lauren, Becky, their husbands and children, and his sister Carolyn Gianotti and her family. Donations can be made in Honor of Len DiSavino to MKSCC www.mskcc.org or ICRF www.icrfonline.org.

Published in the The Journal News on Nov. 6, 2016