

Franklin Humberto Jacome
8/15/1939 - 1/6/1996

Franklin came to Dartmouth from the Mejia School in Quito, Equador. He worked as an electrical engineer for NASA. He also worked for the Agency for International Development in Quito, Equador. Subsequently he received an MBA from Arizona State University. He then started a long career with Motorola, working in several locations including Mexico and Hong Kong. His avocation was drawing political cartoons, which appeared in The Dartmouth and were syndicated. He and his wife, Martha Alice had two children.

