

Vicki is a life-long artist who works in a wide array of media. She has made all our regularly used dishes on her pottery wheel, and has fired those dishes and decorative pots in her kiln.

Vicki is also a jeweler, who works in silver clay and various beading styles.

She does colored pencil portraits of people, dogs and cats, and other animals, as well as pictures of shore birds, birds of prey, turtles, and other animals.

Vicki creates photo-realistic drawings of botanicals, sea shells, antlers, and animal skulls. She also works in acrylic and oil paint, creating large abstract canvasses. She has taken classes at John C. Campbell, Arrowmont, and elsewhere. Vicki has an indoor studio at our house as well as an outdoor studio where she can joyfully throw paint and make a mess. She delights in working in a medium until she feels comfortable in it — and then moving on to another medium.
